

I believe it would be unfair to do anything which would limit ISPs to only a few large companies. I believe I have a better rate and am able to afford using the internet because of the competition from these smaller companies , and they are more able to give me what I am looking for in service. I also think that by the Bell companies raising their rates it limits the smaller ISPs from offering DSL lines which would be a great help to our family. Thanks, Mary Gaa
